

WE ARE LOOKING FOR A POSTDOC CANDIDATE

The "Animal ECO urban" research group of the Zoology Department at the University of Granada is looking for a motivated and competitive candidate to apply for a Juan de la Cierva postdoctoral contract in the 2025 call. We are quite flexible regarding the specific topic but we expect the candidate to develop their own research questions within the research lines of the group. The Juan de la Cierva postdoc call implies that only young researchers (max. 3 years after PhD defense) will be eligible. The contract will be for 3 years and will imply a salary of 35000€ per year (before taxes) and 15000€ for the research associated.

We are an interdisciplinary group investigating urban biodiversity, human-nature interactions in urban areas, and how to create sustainable cities integrating animal conservation, particularly regarding birds and arthropods. Our integrative approach combines different aspects of Conservation Biology, Evolutionary Ecology, Behavioral Ecology, Population Genetics, Ecophysiology and Sociology.

Interested candidates can contact with Juan Diego Ibáñez-Álamo (jia@ugr.es), Fabián Casas (fcasas@ugr.es) or Olivia Sanllorente (oli@ugr.es) before the 3rd of December. The email should include your CV (CVA for Spanish candidates), a motivation letter and contact information for two referees.
